World Kindness Day

We're excited to celebrate World Kindness Day on Thursday 13th November!

Last year, we worked with the School of Kindness, part of the 52 Lives charity, and together with our amazing Kindness Ambassadors completed three kindness challenges to achieve our official 'School of Kindness' accreditation.

This year, we're continuing our kindness journey by holding a non-uniform day on Friday 14th November. Children are invited to come to school in their own clothes in exchange for a £1 donation, which will go directly to support the wonderful work of the 52 Lives charity.

During the week, we'll also be nominating our new Kindness Ambassadors, who will be helping to lead and support kindness activities in their classes on Friday.

Let's keep spreading kindness—one small act at a time!

Arts Ambassadors sharing with the community

As part of our discussions about Remembrance and the importance of honouring those who have served, our Arts Ambassadors have been busy creating a stunning collection of poppies made from clay. Each poppy is unique and represents gratitude, respect, and remembrance.

This week, our Ambassadors had the wonderful opportunity to visit Parley Place Care Home to share their creations with the residents. The children spoke about what remembrance means to them and how their artwork symbolises peace and hope for the future.

The residents were deeply moved by the children's thoughtfulness and creativity, and it was a truly special experience for everyone involved. We are incredibly proud of our Arts Ambassadors for representing our school with such kindness, respect, and artistic talent.
